

Who is Quad Plus?

Quad Plus®

Quad Plus was founded in 1990 in Joliet, Illinois. We started up the company by performing engineering services and commissioning work, both domestically and internationally, building a network of clientele. Along the way, many excellent engineers, technicians, and professionals have joined Quad Plus. Their diverse knowledge and dedication contributed to our growth, helping Quad Plus become a leading international systems integrator.

Over the last 33 years, we have added complementary services such as Professional Engineering, Industrial Machine Safety, System Integration, Commissioning, Repair and Field Service, and Power Services. These services provide a turnkey solution for our customers.

Our core business is System Integration, which can be thought of as bridging the gap between machines (islands of information) that are disconnected, allowing them to communicate. We use various technologies and controls, such as PLCs (Programmable Logic Controller), HMIs (Human Machine Interface) and drives to integrate new systems with different levels of processing in a facility. We make the systems that are disconnected or not running to their full capacity, connected and working well.

We like to say that the PLC is the brain, the HMI is the face, and the drives are the arms and legs that move motors and actuators. To have the whole “body” move at the same time and pace, we help them communicate with one another for the most efficient and effective solution.

Here at Quad Plus we’ve grown through the changes in industry, and we understand that there are no simple solutions. Our engineers bring systems together while simultaneously understanding the processes behind the product we are working with to come up with a turnkey solution in a timely manner.

Our mission here at Quad Plus is to promote a team-oriented environment that fosters employee development, growth and opportunity; producing high-quality, innovative solutions for our customers worldwide. We work as one team who takes ownership and cares about the outcome that we are committed to reaching with common goals.

Our vision is to be the preferred provider of engineering and technology solutions for our customers, supplying all the services needed in the system integration lifecycle. Our success depends on a respectful, open-minded, and inclusive culture that encourages continuous improvement. Through an empathetic approach to the needs of our customers, we build trust and demonstrate why we are their preferred solutions provider.

We welcome you to the team here at Quad Plus and look forward to growing and learning with each other, every step of the way.